

Students learn about birds at Ballyneal

Holyoke 4th graders learned about birds from Master Gardener Dave Hensley (pictured) on Oct. 1 at Ballyneal. The program was beneficial for both the kids and Ballyneal, which is working on receiving its Audubon certification. Ballyneal needs to educate as a part of their educational outreach for their certification in the Audubon Sanctuary Program for Golf Courses. Students learned about five different birds. The Ringed Neck Pheasant, Killdeer, Great Blue Heron and Northern Harrier were other species discussed along with the Western Meadowlark which Hensley is holding in the photo.
